

Fast forward to 1920, when the great writer and hell-raiser Upton Sinclair observed, "Journalism in America is the business and practice of presenting the news of the day in the interest of economic privilege."